

Treaty Calumet

The calumet thought to be used at the Treaty of Greene Ville is magnificent. Its bowl is shaped from red catlinite of possible Minnesota origin with a long elaborately carved stem. Beautifully inlaid in pewter or lead the calumet has an overall length of 40 1/2 inches and the bowl is 3 1/4 inches in height.

The Garst Museum displays a reproduction of the calumet of peace of the Fifteen Fires of the United States used by Anthony Wayne during the proceedings of the Treaty of Greene Ville. The original is preserved and on view at the Ohio Historical Society in Columbus, Ohio.
